COURSE OVERVIEW:

This course examines the dialectical relationship between immigrant and migrating families and the various factors that propels family immigration and incorporation of new immigrants in the host society. We will particularly focus on how migration alters and reshapes family and household organization in sending and receiving communities. With this aim in mind, the course considers concepts, theories, and data about the history, the economics and the politics of immigrant, transnational and refugee families that rest at the intersections of gender, class, race, sexuality, and citizenship. Specifically we will survey the literature that gives evidence of the major concepts and questions in immigration studies as well as a variety of case studies that will bring to life the lived experiences of immigrant families in Canada, United States and globally.

COURSE/LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

This course is designed to foster critical thinking about issues of immigrant families. At the end of this course students will be able to:

1. Understand the historical context of immigration policy in Canada, the U.S. and other parts of the world, the impact of globalization, and the framing of the immigration narrative
2. Recognize that migration is a multifaceted phenomenon shaping the lives of immigrant families, non-migrants in the country of origin, and the native born population in the destination country
3. Recognize and critically evaluate the way migration patterns affect family structure, family formations, and other facets of family lives for immigrating and transnational families.

4. Identify current policies of the receiving and sending States that shape the lived experiences of immigrants and their families both locally and globally

Participation in this course and assessment of individual assignments will also provide you with opportunities to improve your overall skills in the following areas: analytical thinking, writing and research, and with an understanding and appreciation of the varieties of social organization and their effect on the human condition by:

1. Fostering intellectual curiosity.
2. Breaking free from the leash of cultural conformity by learning to think critically and creatively about issues for themselves without relying on others (authorities) to make the assessments for them.
3. Finding, understanding and critically assessing scholarly and analytic bodies of sociological literature on our special topic.
4. Practicing the skill of connecting social observations with theory so that theories learnt in this class can be used by students throughout their lives to develop sophisticated assessments about the causes and effects of human actions.
5. Writing and speaking clearly and fluently while also incorporating the sociological knowledge (i.e. terms, concepts and theories).
6. Achieving breadth of knowledge across sociological substantive areas and depth within one area.

READINGS:

Readings are listed in the course calendar in pages 8-12.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS, EXPECTATIONS AND GRADING:

You will be responsible for all readings specified in the course outline, as well as all lecture materials (including films, guest speaker presentations etc.)

The course grade will be determined as follows:

Class Participation	15 %
Op-ed Paper	15 %
Group Presentations	15 %
Research Proposal paper	35 %
Registrar-scheduled final exam	20 %

Grades will be assigned according to the following scale:

A+ = 97-100	B+ = 80-84	C+ = 67-69	D+ = 54-58
A = 90-96	B = 75-79	C = 63-66	D = 50-53
A- = 85-89	B- = 70-74	C- = 59-62	F = 49 or less

Please note that ALL tests and assignments must be completed to obtain a passing grade in this course. Please note also that final grades are NOT negotiable. No grade will be increased beyond what a student has earned during the term, and in the class.

Reading for the class:

Students will be expected to keep up with the assigned readings for each class period. The reading load is not excessive, but does require you to plan ahead to get it done. If you want to do well in this class, you must not only complete the readings, but take time to critically think about them before you come to class. NOTE I reserve the right to add additional readings OR drop readings as they fit the progression of the course. Coming to class will be the best way to make sure you are up-to-date on such readings.

You will be expected to take notes on readings prior to coming to class. These notes are designed to summarize key points and should include some of your own questions or analysis of the readings. I will regularly invite students to ask their own questions based on the readings or lectures. I regard lectures and discussions as a supplement to what you are reading. At times, the lectures will seek to clarify and crystallize some of the reading material. At other times, however, the lectures will add to or historicize what you are reading. Attendance in class will likely be the single most important factor in your ability to do well in this course.

Class Participation (15%): includes: (a) your regular attendance in class; (c) your ability to respond to questions in class about the readings when called upon; (d) your ability to ask questions of your own in class; (d) general participation in class discussions and activities. Being prepared to answer questions, NOT missing classes without advance permission, and volunteering to ask and answer questions in class will significantly help your scores on participation. I cannot replicate class discussions for people who miss a class period! Also, make a friend to make-up for what you miss when you are absent from class.

Note: In-class contribution is a significant part of the grade, and an important part of our shared pedagogical experience. Your active participation helps me to evaluate your overall performance as a student (as well as making the class more interactive and engaging for all of us). The quality of your participation is more important than the quantity. Given our limited amount of time together, talking without positively contributing is not encouraged. However, I want to stress that positive contributions are not necessarily “right” answers. I encourage you to experiment and take risks. “Not-so-correct” answers can also be instructive and debate is often a good way to learn. Positive contributions are those that advance the discussion by presenting new ideas or insights, or building on others’ comments, or presenting a counterpoint to others’ comments in a respectful way. Contributions that are not positive are those that simply repeat points already made or deride others’ contributions in a discourteous way

Op-ed Paper (15%) Due February 26: For this assignment, you will draw on sociological theories of immigration and families to write an op-ed about a contemporary gender debate of your choice. Details and step-wise guide to the assignment will be uploaded on D2L at least two weeks before the assignment is due. An op-ed is a newspaper article that provides a clear and concise opinion about a timely issue. For more information about what an op-ed entails, as well as a sample op-ed, see: <http://www.advocatesforyouth.org/topics-issues/organizational-development/246?task=view>.

Group Presentation (15%): You will be required to will to provide a 15-minute presentation on current events affecting immigrant families. You will do this in a group of 2-3 students. In these presentations, you are asked to clearly state the event; tie it in with topics being explored in the course; and pose questions that will lead to active in-class discussion. In order to complete this assignment, you will have to keep a watchful eye on the news. The current event can be international, national, or local in nature. I will pass around a sign-up sheet during the second class and each student must sign-up for the assignment.

Research Proposal (35%): A research proposal is the first step to conducting an original research project. For this assignment you will have to think very carefully about a topic in the field of immigration and families that interests you deeply and that you would want to explore further. I will provide a few suggestions for topics in the more detailed version of the assignment guide that will be posted on D2L, but you should feel free to pick a topic outside of that list. The research proposal consists of a research plan that is 12-18 pages (in 12 font - Time New Roman, double-spaced with 1” margins on all sides). The research plan includes the following sections: 1) Title page 2) Abstract 2) Introduction, 3) Literature review consisting at least 10 academic and 5 non academic sources, 4) Methodology, 5) Expected Findings 6) Conclusion 7) Timeline for completion of the project, 8) Bibliography.

I want you to think of this assignment/project as more than just a requirement for this class. I want you to write a paper that you can use to apply to graduate school or submit as writing sample for job applications or pursue as a research project in the future. If a research proposal is particularly excellent, meaning, if it is of top-notch quality and is feasible as a project, as well as is of interest to me, I will offer the student, the option to continue working on the project over summer with me to make it into a research paper much like the papers you read for this class and find a venue to publish it (as co-authors) or in the least present it at an academic conference.

Steps and Deadlines associated with Research Proposal:

Step 1. Outline of your research proposal: One page research outline that should clearly state the topic of your research proposal, your research questions, possible sources you will draw on and your plan for completion of the project. Due: February 8

Step 2. Meet with your professor: After February 15 until March 28. This step is optional BUT I highly recommend that you check in with me about your thoughts and progress on the paper at least once before your first draft is due. If you do this a couple of times, you maybe able to skip Step 3 and go to Step 4.

Step 3. Draft of research paper: Due March 28. This step is also optional. If you submit a draft of your final paper, I will be happy to give you feedback before you submit the final paper. However, this CANNOT be a rough draft. This needs to be a draft that is almost final. If you submit a rough draft, I will not provide you feedback because it will be too late for you to fix a super rough draft and it then is a waste of both your and my time.

Note that, steps 2 and 3 are not mandatory but recommended for you to do well on the final paper.

Step 4: Final Research Paper: Due April 13

Registered Final Exam (20%): The exams will include multiple choice, short-answer questions and/or essay questions. Please write legibly. Answers that your marker cannot read will lose points.

NOTE*: Nitpicking over points is discouraged as this reflects the prioritization of the grade over learning. No late assignments are accepted without valid DOCUMENTED reasons.

OTHER ADMINISTRATIVE INFORMATION:

Attendance Policy

Attendance is mandatory in every class. All students are expected to be present. If you face any particular challenges that you believe will affect your commitment to this course, please make an appointment to meet with one or both of us at the earliest possible date. You may not be responsible for your circumstances, but you are responsible for letting me know when you need support. We are more likely to be able to assist you in dealing with your situation if we know about it early in the semester.

Grade Reappraisal

Within two weeks of the date the exam/assignment is returned, students seeking reappraisal of examinations or assignments must submit a written response to me explaining the basis for reconsideration of one's mark. I will reconsider the grade assigned and will then book a time with the student to discuss his or her work and rationale. It should be noted that a re-assessed grade may be raised, lowered, or remain the same.

Reviewing of Exam and Assignment

Students will have two weeks after the exams and assignments have been mark and grades have been posted on D2L to review the exam. For instance, students cannot demand to see the first exam at the end of the

Technology Use

To minimize disruption in the classroom, all cell phones; tablets and other electronic devices must be turned OFF during class unless otherwise instructed. You may use your cell phones when I ask you to register attendance and/or reading quizzes through the TopHat learning tool. Laptops are permitted in the classroom BUT ONLY to take notes and to connect with TopHat. Research has shown that laptops bring down your own and your classmates performances and grades (I have posted the research on this on D2L under "Useful Links"). (Permission to use LAPTOPS AND CELL PHONES may be withdrawn if they are used for anything else other than class purposes)

Email

Students can contact me over email. Please take that into account when emailing me questions pertaining assignments or exams, know that I do not discuss marks over email – any questions regarding marks needs to be addressed face-to-face. If you have a course-related question, please check the course outline first. Questions that can be answered by consulting the course outline will not be answered. Also, please e-mail me for administrative purposes only, for example to set up an appointment. Please do not use e-mail as a replacement for an office visit, if there is something you want to discuss. Questions about the course content and readings, concerns about grades, or any other personal issues should be dealt with in person during my office hours.

Ethics Research

Students are advised that any research with human subjects – including any interviewing (even with friends and family), opinion polling, or unobtrusive observation – must have the approval of the Faculty Ethics Committee. Deferrals will be allowed in the following circumstances: illness, domestic affliction or religious conviction. Travel arrangements, misreading the syllabus, and scheduling conflicts with other classes or employment are not valid reasons for requesting a deferral. Deferrals will not be granted if it is determined that just cause is not shown by the student.

If you have missed a test for a legitimate reason, I can require you to write a “make up” test as close in time to the original test as possible or can choose to transfer the percentage weight to another course component. If I schedule a “make up” test for you, its date and location will be at the convenience of the Department of Sociology.
