Course Description
This course will introduce basic concepts in the field of sociology. By surveying these concepts, this course will offer a more systematic understanding of how social life and institutions shape groups and individuals; and at the same time, how society evolves as a result of actions taken by groups and individuals. This interplay between social institutions, group actions, and individual actions lies at the heart of sociology. By understanding the dynamics and forces of this interplay, students will acquire what C. Wright Mills calls the "sociological imagination": the ability to connect people’s experiences with larger social structures. In other words, students will become more perceptive of how personal experiences are shaped by historical-conditioned and contemporary social forces. After introducing both classical and contemporary sociological theories, the course will introduce key substantive areas of sociology research, e.g., social inequality, race and ethnicity, religion, to students. As a result, this course will enable students to develop critical thinking about social structures, individual actions, group actions and provide them a deeper understanding of sociological theories and methods.

Course Objectives/Learning Outcomes
1. Explain different sociological theories.
2. Describing sociology as a multi-perspective social science in which there are multiple paradigms, e.g., interpretive, positivist, and critical paradigms

5. Understand theoretical perspectives on society and sociological concept of reality

Passing Grades

In order to pass the course, students must obtain 50% or more overall as per the grading scale.

Grade Reappraisal

Within two weeks of the date of the return of each examination grade, students seeking reappraisal may submit a written response to the instructor explaining the basis for reconsideration of the mark. The instructor will reconsider the assigned grade and book a time to meet with the student. A re-assessed grade may be increased, decreased, or remain the same.

Technology Use

Electronic devices are common in Canadian classrooms. While they can be very effective in assisting students in the learning process, they can also be very distracting if not used properly. Students are encouraged to reflect on how their use of electronic devices affects their learning and how it affects others around them.

Email

Electronic mail is a convenient way for students to communicate with professors. If not used properly, however, email use can become problematic. Before sending an email, please attempt to obtain information from the course outline. Please email me for administrative purposes only, for example, to set up an appointment. Please do not use email as a substitute for an office visit. Questions regarding course content, student challenges, grades, or other personal issues should be dealt with in person during my office hours. Please put your course number and section in your email’s subject line, and include your full name, student ID. I do not answer emails over the weekend. All emails violating customary email conventions will be ignored. All other emails will be answered within three business day.

Anything that requires handing back will be returned directly during class or office hours. If students are unable to pick up their assignments from the instructor, they provide the instructor with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to be used for the return of the assignment.
3. Final grades are not posted by the Sociology Department. They are only available online.

Research Ethics
Students are advised that any research with human subjects – including any interviewing (even with friends and family), opinion polling, or unobtrusive observation – must have the approval of the Faculty Ethics Committee. In completing course requirements, students must not undertake any human subjects research without discussing their plans with the instructor, to determine if ethics approval is required.

Instructors may request that evidence in the form of documentation be provided. If the reason provided for the absence is acceptable, instructors may decide that any arrangements made can take forms other than make-up tests or assignments. For example, the weight of a missed grade may be added to another assignment or test. For information on possible forms of documentation, including statutory declarations, please see https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html
