Course Objectives

This course will provide the students with the opportunity to:

1. Examine the role of “race” and ethnicity in everyday life from a sociological perspective.

2. Explore the social construction of “race” and ethnicity.
3. Develop an understanding of the ways in which “race” and ethnicity influence individuals and societies.
4. Identify the centrality of identity and identification processes for the creation of “race” and ethnicity.

Required Textbook

Jenkins, Richard. (2008). Rethinking Ethnicity. Second Edition. Sage Publications.

Evaluation

Participation (Class Activities or Forum Discussions)	5 %
Assignments	20 %
First Midterm examination (Tuesday, October 8)	20 %
Second Midterm examination (Tuesday, November 7)	20 %
Final Project (Friday, December 6)	20 %
Final Exam (Thursday, December 5)	15 %

Class Activities are team exercises designed to enhance the understanding of the topics discussed on class. They will be completed during lecture to provide the possibility of class discussions and involve students in the learning process. Those students that cannot attend lecture at some point during the course can obtain the percentage assigned to participation by posting class activities on D2L.

Assignments are individual in nature and will evaluate students’ understanding of the textbook and assigned papers. Assignments will not be accepted after their due dates unless a documented reason for not submitting them is provided (acceptable reasons: illness, family affliction, religious observance).

The Midterm examinations and the Final Exam will consist of multiple choice questions. They are non-cumulative.

The Final Project will be a paper in which the students will present their research and analysis of a topic or issue related to the field of race and ethnicity. In teams, the students will gather information from different sources and, using concepts learned in the course, will write an analytical essay about their selected topic. More information about the final project can be found in D2L by accessing the “Final Project Outline”.
