Calendar description

This senior-level undergraduate course explores social theory and empirical research concerning the formation and reproduction of human identities. The fluid and multi-faceted nature of identity is examined through study of the social processes through which we come to understand ourselves and others as individuals and as members of various collectivities in domains including: ethnicity and race; nationalism and cosmopolitanism; gender and sexuality; social class, work, and consumption; age and the life course; localities and online communities; and religion and fandoms.

Time and location

Class sessions are from 12:30 to 13:45 on Tuesdays and Thursdays, in room EDC 287.

Components

The course is organized into three basic parts, each of which contributes to the overall learning outcomes of building knowledge of sociological theory and research about human identities, and enhancing academic and professional skills. In the first part of the course, the instructor lectures and facilitates group discussion about theoretical and conceptual frameworks in the sociological study of identity. In the second part of the course, lectures are accompanied by student-led discussions of assigned readings. Students rotate responsibility for summarizing and leading the discussion of readings chosen by the instructor to exemplify recent scholarship in the sociology of identity in each of the following domains:

- Ethnicity and race
- Nationalism and cosmopolitanism
- Gender and sexuality
- Social class, work, and consumption
- Age and the life course
- Localities and online communities
- Religion and fandoms

The third, and shortest, part of the course is dedicated to review and examination.

Deferrals

When possible, please provide advance notice if you are unable to write an exam or complete/turn-in assignments on time. All requests for deferral of a course component due to health reasons must be accompanied by written documentation as outlined in the University Calendar and should be obtained while the student has the health issue rather than after recovery. Deferrals will be allowed in the following circumstances: illness, domestic affliction or religious conviction. Travel arrangements, misreading the syllabus, and scheduling conflicts with other classes or employment are not valid reasons for requesting a deferral. Deferrals will not be granted if it is determined that just cause is not shown by the student.

If you have missed a test for a legitimate reason, the instructor can require you to write a “make up” test as close in time to the original test as possible or can choose to transfer the percentage weight to another course component. If the instructor schedules a “make up” test for you, its date and location will be at the convenience of the Department of Sociology.

Deferred Final Exam Form: Please note that requests to defer a Registrar scheduled final exam are dealt with through the Registrar’s Office. Further information about deadlines, and where paperwork should be taken, is available on the form, which can be found at:
